Open terrain is clearer and easier to travel than most. Roads and commonly trod paths are the best examples of this, along with cleared and settled areas. You can travel at one and a half times normal speed in open terrain.
Environment & Hazard Look Up
Hills
In combat: Light Cover (1▣), Difficult terrain (2-3 AP), Elevation (-1 on PER tests looking down)

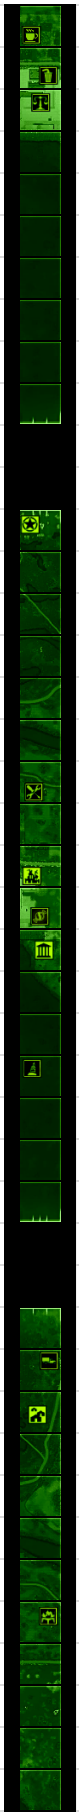

Falling! In combat, a hill should normally be divided up into multiple zones, with one for the top of the hill, and two or more for the slopes around it. Moving up a steep slope or short cliff is tough (2 or 3 AP to cross). Any character who falls prone (such as from a complication) while on a slope falls, slipping downwards(3 ▣ Stun physical damage).
Hard terrain when ascending or Rough terrain when descending
Weather & Light Lookup
Mist and Fog
PER tests that rely on vision and all ranged attacks increase in difficulty by +1 when the target is at Medium range or further.
